Working together to make things better

North Brisbane Partners in Recovery works with people who:

- Have long-term, severe problems with their mental health
- Have complex needs that can't be addressed by just one support service
- Can't get the help they need from other places
- Want to work with someone to make things better.

We help our clients to get the support they need to get their lives back on track.

Working together – with clients

At North Brisbane Partners in Recovery, we work alongside our clients to help them get the support that they need. Our Support Facilitators help clients to:

- Make plans about working towards recovery
- Find the right places to get help
- Make sure that different services meet their needs
- Coordinate different services
- Solve practical problems – like housing and health needs
- Keep working towards recovery.

This is an initiative of the Australian Government.

Working together – with support services

At North Brisbane Partners in Recovery, we work with support services to help them meet the needs of clients who have persistent mental health problems. We help services to:

- Understand the needs of clients who have complex needs
- Know the various support services available in the region
- Liaise with other support services to fully meet the needs of clients
- Improve the services that are available in the local community.

We help different support services to work together so that people with complex needs don't fall through the gaps.

Working with the people who need us most

North Brisbane Partners in Recovery works with people who have long-term, severe problems. To get help from us, people need to:

- Appear to have a mental illness that is severe and persistent
- Have complex needs that can't be addressed by just one support service
- Require support from multiple services
- Be willing to work with us.

Working in the local community

North Brisbane Partners in Recovery has Support Facilitators working in seven community agencies throughout the region. We work with people on the north side of the Brisbane River – including north Brisbane, Moreton Bay Regional Council, and north to Kilcoy. We work at the local level to understand the needs of people in our region.

Getting support from Partners in Recovery

If you know someone who may benefit from our support, please phone us on 1800 752 235. You'll be able to talk directly to one of our Support Facilitators.

We will ask some simple questions to help us understand whether we can help.

The journey to recovery

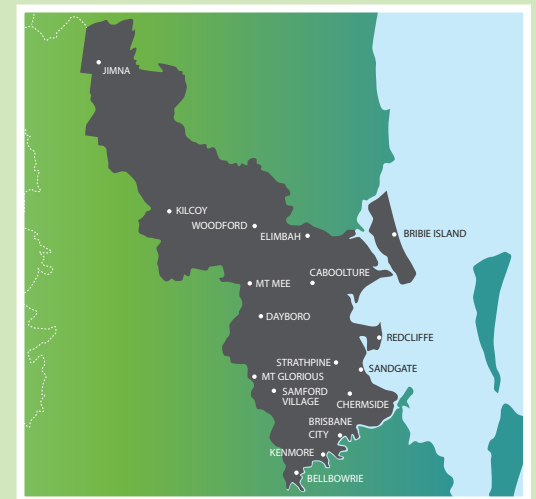

Our Support Facilitators start by meeting with potential clients to assess their needs and begin the process of getting life back on track.

We don't conduct formal mental health assessments or provide support services directly.

We arrange health assessments when they're necessary and coordinate the different services that our clients need.

We start by helping clients to develop an Action Plan for recovery.

Then, we work alongside clients and their services to understand how recovery can happen.
